Time travels

The Sierra Silver Mine Tour takes you on a guided tour of Wallace via trolley and one of a kind underground mine tour.

History lives in Wallace

For the history fan Wallace, Idaho boasts a treasure trove of attractions. The entire city is listed entirely on the National Register of Historic Places, and nearly every home and building has a storied past.

Pedestrians can stroll at their leisure and learn the fascinating heritage of the town and its landmarks.

“Among the most historic towns in the West.”

True West Magazine

The first weekend of October the town celebrates that heritage with a history festival

So much so Wallace was recently honored by True West Magazine as one of the top ten historic towns in the West.

Wallace offers self guided walking tours of its 1890s era residential and commercial districts.

Northern Pacific Railroad Depot Museum

featuring guided tours of historic homes, re-enactments, free lectures and workshops.

Hitch a ride...

The Northern Pacific Railroad Depot Museum

is a great place to start your tour. The beautifully restored 1901 built chateau style railroad depot and grounds tell the town's rich heritage through a series of interactive exhibits--all done with attention to style and accuracy. Find unique treasures in their gift shop and attend the museum's multiple special events year-round. Open April 15-October 15 (208)752-0111

Over $7 billion in mineral wealth have fueled an even richer history of fortunes made and lost, labor strife, assassination of an Idaho Governor and visits from sitting U.S. Presidents.

Exhibits on the Great Fire of 1910, a Smithsonian quality life sized mock mine, theater, Dante's Peak film exhibits, as well as an extensive digital research archive have led the museum to be named one of Idaho's finest educational and research institutions.

The museum's gift shop boasts a large collection of histories as well as silver coins and bullion. Open year round. (208) 556-1592

Nine Mile Cemetery
lies adjacent to the Sierra Silver one mile north of town on Dobson Pass road (Rt 456). Among steep hills and forest is this solemn city of the dead, with internees from the town's beginnings in 1884 to the present.

Sections for different religions and occupations as well as monuments to the firefighters who died in great blaze of 1910. To get there follow Sixth St. north past the Depot. Proceed under I-90. Look for the green 1 mile marker on the right. The cemetery is on the left.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Depot Museum transports you back to a time when railroads were the king of transportation.

Road to Riches, Burke Canyon

Burke, Gem, Frisco, Black Bear, Yellow Dog—all legendary names of towns filled with stories of Bonanza and Bust and all a short drive up Burke Canyon Road at Exit 62 off I-90 at Wallace (Idaho State Rte 4). On your way up the canyon see the massive ruins of the Frisco Mill, blown apart by striking workers in the 1890s mining war, as well as those still inhabited mining towns alongside river and within a couple of miles of each other.

Spectacular scenery and views along with frequent sightings of deer and Elk abound the whole seven mile drive to the once bustling town of Burke. Set in canyon so narrow that the mines, mills, rail, road and even a hotel had to share the same thoroughfare. That hotel, the Tiger, made Ripley's Believe or Not for having river and railroad passing through the building.

The Pulaski Trail

Trial & trail by Fire

Lush forest, gurgling Placer Creek and breath-taking waterfalls now cover what was once a hellish moonscape from the largest wild fire in U.S. History. This four mile round trip hike with interpretative signage commemorates the heroism of firefighters who risked their lives saving Wallace from incineration.

The trail honors Ranger Ed Pulaski, who saved his crew of 45 men by shepherding them to safety. Featured on the Travel Channel, in the NY Times bestseller the Big Burn and PBS' American Experience, the trailhead is located one mile south of Wallace on St. Rte 456. (New road signs are being installed this year in Wallace to guide visitors to the trail. Please note: the way to the trail passes through residential areas, so please obey speed limits and watch for pets and pedestrians.)

This two-mile trail will take you to The Pulaski Tunnel. There, during two days in August 1910, Ranger "Big Ed" Pulaski, in the midst of a raging inferno, saved the lives of all but 6 of his 45-man crew.

The firestorm that Pulaski and his crew survived was the climax, "The Big Blowup," to the summer-long fight against hundreds of fires burning in Idaho and Montana.

Pulaski and his crew could not have realized that their story and the story of the 1910 fires would change the way the public viewed forest fires and the way public agencies responded to them.

During the summer of 1910 forest fires were everywhere in the Coeur d'Alene Mountains of northern Idaho. For weeks there had been no rain and the woods were drier than I had ever seen them. The intense heat and the sun, combined with strong winds which sprang up during the day, served to scatter the fires in all directions. Crews of several hundred men were working twenty-four hours a day throughout the mountains, endeavoring to hold back the fires.

Fire has a history here

Repeated surface fires have a unique way of creating a mosaic of overlapping areas which is essential to the survival of forest resources and can be found in the volcanic zone.

The forest fires that trapped Pulaski's crew were unique. Fires have been sweeping through these forests for thousands of years. Healing "fire scars" growth rings of ancient trees.

Cheer & jeer the Sixth Street players

The Sixth Street Melodrama and Theater offer year-round activity, providing Wallace with live entertainment since 1983.

Each summer the actors perform two different melodramas in July and August with other performances throughout the year -- including comedies and musical productions.

The Melodrama performs in the renovated Kelly Building -- which has its own colorful past, notably as part of the Lux Rooms Bordello. It also is the only wood building remaining in the present day downtown that wasn't destroyed by the 1890 fire.

Hands on heritage

The Mining Heritage Exhibition stretches over four acres of park and river front adjacent on the grounds the Wallace Visitor Center (I-90 Exit 61). The free, outdoor family friendly museum depicts the evolution of local mining through numerous hands on exhibits and new interpretative signs--inviting those of all ages to learn what it takes to wrest mineral riches from miles below the surface.

Mining Heritage Exhibition, Inc. is a tax-exempt 501(c) (3) organization. It created this outdoor museum with donations and volunteer labor. Additional information on this project can be obtained by writing to MHE, Box 469, Wallace, Idaho, 83873.

Zip over to Silver Streak

You'll be screaming Bonsai! Geronimo! Oh My God! or equally exuberant exclamations once flying down Wallace's newest adventure, the Silver Streak Zipline.

The zipline offers 12 different courses. Each has "dual zips," allowing the option of flying in the prone or "superhero" position with speeds up to 60 mph (or slower for the less wild at heart). It's fun for the entire family.

The zipline's office and welcome center is conveniently located in downtown Wallace at 523 Cedar Street.

New this year are camping sites on nearby mountain glades. Reservations are recommended; call (208) 556-1690. Check their website for more information: silverstreakziplinetours.com Silver Streak Zipline photo

Treasure at Crystal Gold Mine

Just nine miles west of Wallace lies the Crystal Gold Mine & RV Park. Prospectors first discovered a gold bearing vein there in 1879 and mined it for three years before abandoning the site.

The mine was lost for over a hundred years. In 1991, the then owner saw water seeping out of the hillside. Hoping it was a spring, he dug into the bank and partially uncovered the portal. In 1996 the site was rejuvenated as a tourist attraction. Visitors will see the smithsonite crystals that have formed on the walls, and quartz veins with gold and silver. Gold Panning included with tours during summer months. I-90 Exit 54

Getting high has a whole different meaning in Wallace.

Folks do it here by climbing our extensive and scenic stair system.

Years ago, people climbed the stairs of Wallace to get from one residential street to the next on the steep south hills.

Over the years the stairs became dilapidated and overgrown with trees and brush. In 2011, the City, volunteers, businesses and historic preservation groups joined forces to begin an ongoing restoration of the staircases. Several stairways have now been replaced or restored. Most stairways are 100 feet long and have 76 to 84 steps, including those with landings and benches. Stop at the Wallace Visitor/Welcme Center, Mine Museum or Railroad Museums for maps to the stairs. Lizzie Keitel photo

Saved by the Beer

Wallace brewed beer is the stuff of legend. It was in the aftermath of 1910's Big Burn that beer came to the rescue. One third of the town was incinerated in the blaze, part of the 3 million acres burnt in 36 hours across the West.

The fire had so polluted local water drinking supplies that authorities forbade anyone in town to drink anything but beer for three days after the flames were extinguished. With that history, brewing and consuming beer in Wallace is an honored tradition. Today Wallace brew masters mix top quality hops, barley and some of the sweetest, purest water into satisfying and awarding winning brews.

North Idaho Mountain Brewery. NIMB's motto is "brewing one great beer at a time." Choose from ales like Baldy Blonde, Sunset Red, or dark Black IPA. Try their Pulaski Porter with hints of chocolate and coffee. The brew is named after one of the heroes of that Great Fire, Forest Ranger Big Ed Pulaski. (If you get real lucky, you might happen upon the local amateur brew club that meets at NIMB regularly). North Idaho Mountain Brewery is located inside the City Limits Brew Pub at 108 Nine Mile Road, 208-556-1120 northidahomountainbrew.com

Wallace Brewing. In a town famous for its silver mines, they claim beer is the new gold – and they've set out to prove it. The brewery pays homage to the town's wild past, with mining and bordello-inspired monikers such as Dirty Blonde, Jackleg Stout, RedLight Irish Red Ale, and Idaho Select Light Lager. Taste them all in the Orehouse Tasting Room. And the Brewery isn't just for humans. Canines are welcome as well. Find them at 610 Bank Street, 208-660-3430. Find them online at wallacebrewing.com Or find their brews in your local grocer. Wallace Brewing ships product across the Northwest.

ROUTE OF THE HIAWATHA:

Awarded the Rails-To-Trails Hall of Fame designation, the Hiawatha is considered the "crown jewel" of all rail-to-trail projects in the country drawing riders from around the world.

(This year the trail celebrates its 20th anniversary with events all season long. Visit RidetheHiawatha.com for details)

It starts at Lookout Pass, and wends its way through 15 miles of jaw dropping scenery, rolling over the abandoned Milwaukee Railroad grade between the old town site of Taft in Montana, and the North Fork of the St. Joe River near Avery.

The trail includes 10 tunnels and seven trestles as high as 230 feet along Looop Creek canyon within the beautiful Bitterroot Mountains.

The best part is it's all downhill with a gentle 1.6 percent average grade that drops 1,000 feet over the 15-mile length. Shuttle buses are available to transport bikes and bikers back to the top.

Everyone from young children to seniors can enjoy the trail and its numerous historical and interpretive signs.

Wildlife sightings of moose, elk and deer are a frequent treat. Get rail passes, shuttle tickets, mountain bike rentals, souvenirs and picnic at Lookout Pass Ski Area, located adjacent to I-90 at the Idaho/Montana border 12 miles east of Historic Wallace. Equipment reservations are recommended. The Hiawatha Trail is open daily from late May to late September, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. PDT. Trail information: (208) 744-1301 or www.ridethehiawatha.com.

Legendary fishing on the St. Joe River will greet travelers headed to the towns of St. Maries and Avery and east into Montana. In winter enjoy over 250 miles of groomed snowmobile trails near Avery, too. The towns can be accessed either via Moon Pass from Wallace's King St. (closed in winter to motorists, but open to snow machines via groomed trail) or via I-90 at the Kingston exit following State Route 3, the White Pine Scenic Highway. Drive past the series of chain lakes before coming to St. Maries. Full services including dining, lodging and fuel are available year-round in both towns. The U.S. Forest Ranger District Office at Avery (208)245-4517 has brochures on trails and campgrounds in the area.

Fishing on the St. Joe Near Avery

North Idaho and the Silver Valley offer an abundance of fish and wildlife for hunters, fishermen, and other outdoor enthusiasts. Two major river drainages and several mountain lakes provide fishing for Rainbow, Westslope Cutthroat, and Brook trout. Hunters can bag plentiful elk, white-tailed deer, and black bear; there is also a limited season on wolves.

Bike, hike, fish, kayak, golf all in one day.

The Coeur d'Alene River system contains wild trout, both Rainbow and Westslope Cutthroat. The St. Joe River system can be reached by driving south from Wallace and also offers excellent fishing. Check the Idaho Department of Fish and Game regulations and information for details.

These rivers are also popular for kayaking, canoeing, rafting and tubing.

For those who enjoy high country fishing, hiking, or backpacking, there are several mountain lakes within a short distance of the Silver Valley.

Winter Playgrounds

Some of the Northwest's deepest powder, abundant snow-covered trails and seemingly limitless uncrowded back country make winter a real wonderland here. Enjoy alpine and cross country skiing, snowboarding, snowshoeing, snowmobiling, tobogganing, tubing and even ice fishing for whitefish.

You can ski Lookout Pass and Silver Mountain ski resorts from November through April. Lookout is one of the first ski runs to open each winter in the Pacific Northwest.

In fact, last winter Lookout received over 500 inches and Silver over 400 inches of the white stuff. Both mountains are groomed, but the powder enthusiast can often find uncut trails and spring "corn snows" that are very skiable. Each resort is within a 15 minute drive of Wallace.

Snowmobiling trails are groomed from mid-December until early March. Fourteen trails are available ranging from 12 to 65 miles in length. Snowmobiling is allowed on the streets of Wallace (weather and snowpack permitting).

SNOWMOBILE INFORMATION: Coeur d'Alene River Ranger District at (208) 783-2363 or Idaho Parks & Recreation, (208) 682-3814. Trail information available at the Historic Wallace Chamber of Commerce. For snowmobile road conditions in Wallace please

Wallace & Hollywood

Hollywood and Wallace go a back a long time beginning 1920s era silent films and as the backdrop of major motion pictures in the 1980s and 1990s. Wallace is also the birthplace and childhood home of movieland star Lana Turner. Here are movies filmed in and around here.

DANTE'S PEAK (1996)

Dante's Peak was an adventure film from Universal Pictures starring Pierce Brosnan and Linda Hamilton shot largely in Wallace and nearby communities. Released in 1997, the movie depicts how a fictional Dante's Peak town (Wallace) gets obliterated by a malignant volcano of the same name.

Each year thousands of Dante's Peak fans flock to Wallace. Props from the film can be seen at the Wallace District Mining Museum including the Dante's Peak Museum sign and prop styrofoam "bricks" used in the disaster scenes. Available for sale locally at the Wallace District Mining Museum, The Northern Pacific Railroad Museum, and Sierra Silver Mine tour.

HEAVEN'S GATE (1981)

Heaven's Gate, a western epic from director Michael Cimono and starring among others Kris Kristofferson, Christopher Walken, Jeff Bridges, Willem Dafoe, John Hurt and Mickey Rourke, contains footage filmed in downtown Wallace. The United Artists film bombed at the box office when it was first released in 1981, helping to bankrupt that studio. A director's cut was released in 2012, however, and that version made the BBC's list of best 100 American films -- referring to it as a "modern masterpiece." Memorabilia from the film can be seen at the Wallace mining and depot museums.

FRIVOLOUS SAL (1925)

The action scenes in the 1925 silent film were filmed in the mines around Wallace. Mine mills, tunnels, shafts and flumes were featured in this action "epic."

Upper left: The movie poster from the 1997 Disaster flick Dante's Peak, starring Pierce Brosnan and Linda Hamilton, filmed here. Below: A little Lana Turner walking up Wallace's Seventh Street viaduct. Wallace's wild past

There is so much to tell about Wallace, Idaho, a city entirely listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The driving force behind our history is the region's mineral wealth. Since 1884 over 1.3 billion ounces of silver have been mined here. One mine alone here—the Sunshine—has produced more silver than the entire Comstock Lode in Nevada. This place is literally the richest silver district on the planet, or as we say "The Silver Capital of the World."

(And yes we are still mining here, with hard working men and women suppling the minerals that make 21st Century communications, transportation, energy and other aspects of modern life possible).

That wealth has driven the story of Wallace, the grand mansions here that would not be out of place in San Francisco and the stately buildings of our downtown historic commercial district.

Those riches also fueled two incredibly violent labor conflicts—the result of which was the blowing up of mills, trains, mass arrests and the assassination of an Idaho governor. (1892-1905)

Wallace's history is also entwined in the nature surrounding us. The majestic pine covered Bitterroot Mountains and the rivers and streams tumbling down our canyons have shaped this place. Perhaps the most significant natural event was the Great Fire of 1910

-- still the largest land fire in U.S. history. It burnt 3 million acres in 36 hours including a third of Wallace, and claimed up to 90 lives.

Teddy

Roosevelt, who had visited Wallace in 1903, used that sacrifice of men and material as well as the heroes of that fire to cement the mission of the US Forest Service to preserve and protect our nation's forests.

Wallace has a wild, rollicking history of literal backbreaking labor, overnight fortunes made and lost, war, gambling, bordellos, movie stars, Presidential visits and political assassination.

The main reason however behind Wallace's official designation is Interstate 90. In 1967 Federal and State govts wanted to pave the town to build the freeway. But the town fought back and held up the project in court for 17 years.

By 1986 city fathers and mothers had quietly put every building in the downtown on the National Register. It was a major precedent for the National Preservation Act, and forced construction of a $43 million bypass.

Fall for History Festival in October

Today Wallace celebrates its colorful past in the most colorful time of the year, October's 4-7 Fall For History Festival, with tours of historic homes and churches, speakers, historic enactments, plays and more.

It's all part of the many attractions here that continue to draw both visitors and transplants to Wallace: safe, walkable streets, charming old town and complete services -- right on the doorstep to wilderness and nearly limitless outdoor recreation. To learn more

Making their mark

Wallace has played host to Presidents, movie stars, and revolutionaries. Here are a few native sons and daughters that rose to fame.

May Awkright

Hutton is one of the most colorful characters to come out of the Coeur d'Alenes. A world famous suffragette and philanthropist she arrived here as a nearly penniless cook. Hutton went on to run a local boarding house for miners.

With new husband Levi, a railroad conductor, she eventually became one of the eight original owners of the Hercules mine. Years of faithful mining their Burke Canyon claim paid off big in 1901 when they struck it rich. Levi was one of the men imprisoned in the mining wars of 1899. Two years later the Huttons were among the wealthiest families in the area.

With new found fortune the Huttons entertained leading notables of the day, including President Teddy Roosevelt, William Borah and Clarence Darrow. The Huttons left Wallace in 1907 for Spokane, where May was instrumental in getting the vote for women in Washington three years later.

She was the first female delegate to the National Democratic Convention (1912). The Huttons never forgot their humble beginnings though, and remained supporters of charities and causes throughout the region until their deaths, leaving much of their fortune to worthy causes.

Guido Bardelli, the Wild Bull of Burke. Bardelli — a miner with movie star looks — dominated boxing rings from California to Montana through the 1920s and 1930s. He called himself Firpo, but reporters nicknamed him the “Wild Bull” for the way he charged his opponents at the sound of the first bell.

As reporters wrote of Bardelli in 1937, “There’s only one Young Firpo on Earth. No other battler, anywhere, fights as he does.”

One writer noted he punched as though the entire Idaho winter was behind him, knocking men out so cold that people feared them dead. Bardelli was posthumously inducted into the World Boxing Hall of Fame in 2008.

That boxing tradition continues today. You can catch USA Boxing sanctioned live amateur boxing here as young fighters from around the Northwest compete in regular bouts in Wallace. Visit wallaceidahochamber.com or usaboxing.org for details.

Lana Turner: Wallace was the childhood home of Hollywood star Lana Turner. She was born Feb. 9, 1920 at the local Providence Hospital. Turner’s family had a home at 217 Bank Street, which still stands today. The Turners left Wallace for San Francisco when Lana was six years old.

Turner eventually became a Hollywood A-list star capturing the lead in many films. She also captured scandalous headlines. Turner memorabilia is on display at local Wallace museums.

The Downtown Walking Tour

A Walk through History

Wallace is unique because of its fine collection of turn-of-the-century buildings, some designed by nationally known architects. The entire town is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and whole blocks in the business district have remained virtually intact for a hundred years or more.

On your tour, look for architectural features such as cast-iron cornices and pilasters, terra cotta trim and decorative glass. Some buildings still have the old glass windows with irregular surfaces. Records occasionally conflict on construction dates; in these instances the most likely dates are listed. Historic Wallace was destroyed by fire on July 27, 1890.

Only two structures survived. The surrounding forests were also spared. Reconstruction began immediately. This time predominately masonry structures were built for better fire resistance. Three of these 1890 vintage structures still grace the corners of Sixth and Bank streets. Start the tour at the Depot.

1. Northern Pacific Railroad Depot Museum (1902). The depot was finished in 1902. The elegant brick and concrete edifice, "ornate and picturesque," was built in the chateau style. It is a reflection of the tastes of the company and the times. The concrete was made from tailings from the concentrators of major Coeur d'Alene Mining District mines. The finest depot of its type in the Pacific Northwest, this structure was moved from its original location on the north side of the river in 1986. Recipient of Idaho Preservation Council's Orchid Award.

2. Jameson Hotel (1907), 304 6th St.. Built for Theodore Jameson to replace the frame structure of the same name and location, this pair of concrete block three-story buildings originally had matching cornices. The facade has been painted. The structure has been restored with vintage furnishings indoors and out, and the interior is designed to make the two buildings function as one.

This work earned owners the Idaho Preservation Council 1979 Orchid Award. Maggie, the ghost, is a regular customer of the Jameson. The Jameson's original wood structure was constructed in 1889.

3. Sweets Hotel (1907), 308 6th St.

4. Camia Bldg. (1914), 218 6th St. Three-story red brick building with an overhanging metal cornice at the top and a somewhat narrower one between the first and second floors. This is thought to be the site of the origin of the 1890 fire disaster that leveled the entire downtown district.

5. Kelly Bldg. (1891), 212 6th St. Believed to be the oldest wood-frame structure in the business district. This two-story hotel with a flat roof has a projecting wooden cornice supported by wooden brackets. A smaller cornice separates the first and second floors on the front. In past years, the Kelly Building also had “female boarding” accommodations upstairs and a hardware store on the ground floor. Currently the home of the Sixth Street Melodrama & Theater.

6. Capt. John Mullan Statue. Located north end of 5th Street near the River. Captain Mullan engineered this route through the Bitterroot Mountains. Work on the military road began in 1859 and was finished in 1862. A path 25-foot wide was cut through the forest. Many bridges were built across the South Fork of the Coeur d’Alene River. By 1866, the Mullan Road had been reconstructed, and the route would play a principle role in the Coeur d’Alene Mining District’s development. Today, Interstate 90 and State Highway 95A follow the Mullan Trail.

7. Wallace Carnegie Library (1910-1911), River and 5th Sts. Its Renaissance Neo-classic design is found as a template on many small town Carnegie libraries. It is a portico live bay brick building with a low-pitched roof. Note the three-inch thick heavy entry doors adorned with prismatic leaded glass reproduced from the original designs recaptured during the restoration of 1999.

8. Elks Temple No. 331 (1924), 419 Cedar St..

9. Sears MacDonald Bldg. (1905), 500 Cedar St. Built to be the Hope Hospital in 1905, this building later was the Morrow Retail Stores headquarters for most of the 20th Century. Morrow’s was established approximately in 1880. At one time there were Morrow’s in 17 north Idaho communities. The store carried everything from washing machines to groceries. It had quality clothing, cosmetics, shoes, jewelry, china and much more. It became the Brooks Hotel in 1992.

10. Furst Bldg. (1900), 517 Cedar St. Constructed by John G. Furst, a Norwegian who also operated a saloon in Gem. Over the years it has housed a soda fountain and ice cream bar, a dance floor and card room, as well as hotel suites.

10A. Eagles Bldg. (1905), 515 Cedar. Galbraith and Hall of Spokane designed the Eagles Lodge hall in 1905. The building employs local concrete block made of tailings from nearby mines and a small amount of silver and gold. Tailings were also used for constructing the county courthouse, homes and street paving. Currently the Sierra Silver Mine Tour.

11. Follett Bldg. (1898), 518 Cedar

12. Holohan-McKinlay Bldg. (1900), Cedar and 6th Sts. Some documents refer to the building as the O’Neil-Samuels Building. The cut-corner entrance has a Corinthian-columned entry with a round arched pediment. The ground floor at one time housed five separate stores. For many years professional and business offices were on the second floor, referred to as Cozy Corners. Private residences occupied the third floor. Currently U.S. Bank.

13. Fuller Hotel later known as Wallace Hotel (1890), 525 Cedar St. One of the first dozen masonry structures built after the 1890 fire, this is the oldest hotel building in Wallace. The eastside is out of plumb. One theory is that the mistake occurred in the rush to replace housing and commercial space after Wallace burned to the ground in 1890. The out-of-plumb mistake was noticed only after thousands of bricks had been laid. Instead of wasting time in starting over, builders continued until the work was straightened. (This theory is based on a survey of a structural engineer's report). The Hotel housed the first bowling alley for both men and women. May Hutton of Hercules Mine fame ran a restaurant there during her early years in Wallace. Currently Wallace Coffee House and Gravis Tech.

14. Arment Bldg. (1911), 601 Cedar This structure was the third Arment Building on the same lot. The first was destroyed in the 1890 fire; the second was a frame building which was replaced by the present masonry structure. The second story, which retains its white brick ornamentation and cornice, operated as a bordello from the 1920s into 1980. Currently the Silver Corner.

15. Civic Bldg. (1933), 401 6th St. The 1890 frame building occupied by Jesse Tabor was destroyed by fire in 1933, and replaced with a brick building. Currently Tabor's Emporium.

16. Bi-Metallic Bldg. (1911), 605 Cedar St. This two-story brick building was a saloon and hotel for most of its existence. Early maps showed a separate frame structure housing a bordello behind the brick one. This business later moved above the saloon and operated until 1988. The second floor, now the Oasis Bordello Museum, remains virtually unchanged from the day the occupants departed, leaving everything intact since 1988.

17. Ryan Hotel (1903), 608 Cedar. This business is believed to be the longest continuously operated legitimate hotel in Wallace. Records show operation from 1903 to the present.

18. Barnard Studio (1907), 614 Cedar St. T.N. Barnard came into this area from Wyoming and first took his photography studio to the gold fields in Murray. Barnard's assistant, Miss Nellie Stockbridge, practiced commercial and portrait photography at this address until her retirement in the late 1960s. The complete collection of Barnard and Stockbridge photographs are now stored at the University of Idaho, Special Collections in Moscow, Idaho.

19. Wallace City Hall & Fire Dept. 703 Cedar. Built in 1924. Across the street is the former site of the Samuels Hotel (1906) Cedar and 7th Streets. This classic Victorian hotel was considered one of the finest in the Northwest when it opened. The Samuel's was razed in 1974 as too expensive to maintain. It was the only brick building ever razed in downtown Wallace.

21. Shoshone County Courthouse (1905), 700 Bank St. Constructed with locally produced concrete blocks containing mine tailings. The blocks are naturally soft, so over the years the courthouse outer walls have been covered with a stucco material.

This structure is a good example of neoclassical revival style. Designed by Sritesky and Sweatt of Spokane, it stands three stories on a raised foundation. It is distinguished by the two-story arched windows about the central entry with its balustraded balcony supported by medallions. Other features include the non-derivative fluted pilasters, denticulated cornice and high parapet. Legendary attorney Clarence Darrow defended accused murderer Steve Adams in this building in 1906. The trial was part of the overall proceedings involving the alleged conspiracy to assassinate Idaho's former Gov. Frank Steunenberg in December 1905.

22. Hale Bldg(1925), 621 Bank St.

23. Idaho Press Bldg. (1890), 622 Bank St. This building begins what is believed to be the oldest block in the downtown district. It was originally a dry goods store. This is the borderline street for damages incurred by the great fires of 1910. This two-story brick building has a brick cornice, segmentally arched windows and a cast iron front. Currently the Idaho Press Gallery.

24. Coeur d'Alene Hardware Bldg. (1890), 612-622 Bank St.

This building replaced the original wood frame structure owned by Holley, Mason, Marks and Company. It is designed to support six stories. The original appearance has been well preserved. The second story has segmentally arched windows with a brick cornice above. An addition was added to the east in 1896. A second Otterson Building was constructed in 1900. The three structures were used as a single building by Coeur d'Alene Hardware. It was both hardware outlet and main office for the foundry and manufacturing plant, which produced machinery that were shipped all over the U.S. and to several foreign countries. single drum hoists produced there were used in the mining industry, and remain in use today. Currently the Pizza Factory, Price Tag Antiques and Wallace Brewing.

25. Heller Bldg (1898), 608 Bank St. (Currently the 1313 Club) This two-story brick building has two storefronts joined internally on the first floor. The cast iron pilasters remain. The second story retains its segmentally arched windows. The building has housed a hotel upstairs, a bus depot, a barbershop and a cafe since it was rebuilt in 1898. The 1313 Club completed the most recent renovation in 1998.

26. Stevens Bldg. (1906) 609 Bank St.

27. Masonic Hall and Temple (1917), 605 Bank St. This is a two-story brick building with terra cotta and granite trim. Designed by G.I. Hubbell of Spokane. It is distinguished by the extensive use of terra cotta on the second story and a round-arched entry with bracketed curved and denticulated cornice.

28. Howes and King Bldg. (1890), 606 Bank

St. Original structure erected in 1884 by owners Henry E. Howes and Horace G. King, early Wallace merchants. These two men ran a grocery business and general store out of a log cabin at this site. Bricks were manufactured in Silverton at a local brickyard. Currently Idaho Silver.

29. Manheim Bldg. (1890), 604 Bank St. Erected soon after the 1890 fire. This two-story brick building has incurred many changes of the facade over the past century. In 1903, the doorway was in the center of the structure and a mortar and pestle adorned the sidewalk out front. During the great fires of 1910, the U.S. Forest Service had an office upstairs. The space later became a pool hall and bar.

30. Rossi Insurance Bldg. (1890), 602 Bank St. This building was originally built for the Bank of Wallace. In 1892, the First National Bank of Wallace was created and occupied the site until 1916. The second story was added later with a pressed metal turret. It should be noted this turret is a mimic of the one on the White and Bender Building across Sixth Street. The rear entrance features double doors with leaded glass, which are topped with a fan window pattern of elaborate leaded glass. Rossi Insurance is the oldest established business in the downtown historic district.

31. First National Bank Bldg. (1917), 419 6th St. This second renaissance revival, white terra cotta structure is distinguished by its engaged doric columns, round arched windows, pedimented entry, cornice and parapet. The building went through extensive restoration in the 1980s and received the Orchid Award from the Idaho Preservation Council in 1988. Built originally to house First National Bank of Wallace which was chartered in 1892.

32. Idaho Bldg. (1917), 413 6th St. The two-story red-brick building was constructed for Mrs. Otterson and O.D. "Deke" Jones. It is distinguished by its original mezzanine windows and the extensive terra cotta trim. The Idaho Building housed the Pennaluna Company from 1925 until 2015. Currently Friends of the Coeur D'Alene Trails.

33. Gearon Bldg. (1927), 414 6th St.

34. DeLashmutt/McAulay Bldg.(1890), 424 6th St. The building was used as the first post office and county courthouse after the downtown district fires of 1890. The upper-story rooms were known as the "court rooms," providing boarding. Court proceedings were held here after the hijacking of the county records en route to Osburn from Murray until the present courthouse was built in 1906. Currently Smokehouse BBQ & Saloon.

35. White and Bender Bldg. (1890), 524 Bank St. One of the best Queen Anne commercial sites. The tower was originally built in accordance with the architect's plans. White and Bender Company expanded from Murray in 1888. The company opened shop on the corner of Sixth and Bank while the fire of 1890 was still smoking — in a tented structure at first. White and Bender was a retail/wholesale mercantile well into the 1930s. The company then became a finance company and a leader in public financing of appliances and automobiles. The building includes some original White and Bender shelving. White and Bender were the first to install electric lights in Wallace. It held the Stewart Wallace Drug and Selig Water Company. Currently Johnson's Gems.

36. Aulbach Bldg. (1891), 520 Bank St. Built by owner Adam Aulbach, editor-in-chief of the Wallace Free Press, who came over the hill from Murray. He operated a print shop in the back with power from Printer's Creek. This creek is routed under the building, through Wallace, and drains into the South Fork of the Coeur d'Alene River.

37. Finch Bldg. (Circa 1898), 516 Bank.

38. Herrington Hotel (1898), 512 Bank

39. Elks Lodge Hall (circa 1905), 506 and 508 Bank St. Designed by Pruesse and Zittle of Spokane, this is the site of the first Elks Lodge in Wallace, instituted on Jan. 4, 1896. The new lodge was built on Cedar Street in 1924. Notice the elk hoof prints in the sidewalk outside the entrance to the former lodge.

40. Wallace Post Office (1905), 500 block of Bank St. A two-story brick building that is three bays wide. Although remodeled, it retains its second story window and a cast iron pilaster on the first story. Currently North Idaho Trading Co.

41. Shoshone Bldg (1916), 416 and 420 5th St.. The second story is distinguished by round arched windows with polychromatic tiles in its spandrels. A bracketed cornice caps the building, and it has a cast stone entry. The tiles were added later. First floor tenants include Sierra Silver Mine Tour, and Eureka Sally Gallery.

42. North Idaho Telephone Co. (1908), 517 and 517 1/2 Bank.

43. Wallace District Mining Museum and Visitors Ctr. 509 Bank St. This building housed Rice's Bakery until the early 1970s.
